BUILDING LEARNERS' CAPABILITY WITH SUPPORT

At BCITO, we understand that for apprentices to be successful, they need access to the right support at the right time.

Using external providers and tutors, we offer a range of support options in areas such as reading, writing, communication, English language, maths, and general wellbeing.

Access to the right support always starts with having a conversation to identify needs. BCITO are here to help you in this process.

Everyone can do with a bit of support sometimes. The hard part is often asking for it.

This book is your bridge.

Conversations

Just have a chat

Sometimes all an apprentice may want, and all an employer or trainer needs to show, is awareness. Just by chatting, everyone can be aware of how the apprentice is feeling and what support is on offer.

Why chat

As an employer or trainer, you may have noticed you're repeating things, or that your apprentice isn't confident with reading, writing, speaking or maths.

As an apprentice, you may be feeling a bit stuck or behind with learning. You may or may not know the reason for it, but wonder if support could help.

Conversation tips

If you're stuck on what to say, here are some tips to start you off. Remember, you don't have to find a solution. Chatting opens the space for support, the BCITO Learning Success team can do the rest.

Share both ways

Employers or trainers sharing their own stories of struggles, either at school or as apprentices, can often help learners open up too.

No judgments

Create a no-judgement zone. Employers and trainers were apprentices once too, so they also get what it's like.

Keep it casual

The best way to know each other is to be genuinely interested. Try 'What was your schooling like?' or 'I've noticed you're/I'm struggling with X'.

Don't jump to solutions

Keep the conversation around experiences; what you've both noticed or how you both feel. This will inform the kind of support that might help.

Definitions

Understand the reasons

There are many reasons why apprentices may need support. The following definitions are not for diagnosing, but for understanding why an apprentice may be having difficulties onsite. These will be different for each person.

Each of these difficulties or neurodiversities has its own set of challenges, strengths, and things you may notice. It is also common for learners to have more than one neurodiversity.

Definitions

DIFFERENCES & DIFFICULTIES

- English language learners
- Language or communication difficulty
- Literacy difficulty
- Numeracy difficulty
- Schooling background

NEURODIVERSITIES

- ADHD
- Autism
- Dyscalculia
- Dysgraphia
- Dyslexia
- Dyspraxia

Literacy difficulty

Difficulty with words such as reading, writing or communicating.

They may:

- find it hard to read, understand meaning and do written tasks,
- have had difficulty at school, seem anxious and avoid reading and writing.

Dysgraphia

Difficulty with writing, such as forming words or letters, and holding a pen.

They may:

- struggle with spelling, punctuation, and writing thoughts,
- write slowly or poorly, and struggle controlling a pen.

Dyslexia

Difficulty reading or comprehending, which can impact writing or communicating.

They may:

- struggle to read or understand, or to follow a long list of instructions,
- avoid reading or writing and struggle to find the right words.

English language learner

Learning English, where English is not their native language.

They may:

- not have the vocabulary for the context they are working in,
- avoid speaking and misunderstand communications.

Language or communication difficulty

Difficulty with speaking or understanding English, their native language.

They may:

- use a limited range of words and find verbal instructions hard,
- seem not to understand what is said, mispronounce or misuse words.

Numeracy difficulty

Difficulty with number-based tasks and basic maths skills.

They may:

- have trouble doing tasks with numbers, such as measurements, weight, ratios and working with time,
- lack confidence and avoid doing calculations.

Schooling background

Different educational experiences learners had growing up.

They may:

- have gaps in their education due to irregular or disrupted school attendance,
- talk about not having great teachers and study support back then.

ADHD

Difficulty staying focused, impulsive behaviour and restlessness.

They may:

- find instructions difficult and be easily side-tracked or distracted,
- appear anxious, and as if they are not listening to you.

Autism

Affects how people perceive the world, think and communicate.

They may:

- find social interactions difficult, and be sensitive to light, taste, touch or noise,
- seem blunt, overwhelmed by new situations and show repetitive behaviours.

Dyscalculia

Difficulty with numeracy, equations and number activities.

They may:

- find it hard using basic maths ideas or doing number-based activities,
- feel anxious with quantities, measurements, directions, finances, or tracking time.

Dyspraxia

Difficulty with physical coordination, gross-motor and fine-motor skills.

They may:

- find it hard learning new physical skills,
- appear clumsy or uncoordinated, and be sensitive to light, taste, touch or noise.

Trainers can find their own support too with our BCITO Train the Trainer workshops.

Trainers have the opportunity for professional development in supporting and training apprentices.

Workshops cover:

- the role of the trainer,
- how to create a positive and productive training environment,
- getting to know your apprentice,
- getting the best out of your apprentice.

Our supporters need support too.

Request support

Requesting support is simple. All you have to do is complete the online form, either for your apprentice (as an employer or trainer), or for yourself (as an apprentice).

Whether you know what kind of support you'd like, or are unsure of what you need, the process is the same.

Simply tell us what you can, and the Learning Success Team will contact you. Together we can make a plan.
